Visit to the Eugène Boudin Museum

Duration: 2h30 · Type: Classic

Departure on foot to discover the Eugène Boudin Museum and the flavors of Honfleur. Nestled in one of Honfleur's most picturesque streets, this outing invites you to experience the very soul of Normandy, combining artistic heritage with gourmet pleasures. The visit begins at the Eugène Boudin Museum, an emblematic site opened as early as 1869, which continues the spirit of its founders by showcasing artists who found in the region an inexhaustible source of inspiration, from the Romantics to the Impressionists. As you explore, you will discover a rich and varied space enhanced by the charming chapel of the Augustinian convent. Spread over three levels, the museum reveals a remarkable Norman ethnographic collection, a section dedicated to 20th-century painters, as well as numerous works by Eugène Boudin himself, renowned for his luminous depictions of Normandy's skies and coastlines. After this cultural immersion, you will head to the port of Honfleur for a moment of relaxation and indulgence with a tasting of fresh oysters. A true local institution, this convivial break will allow you to savor the briny flavors of the Norman coast in the authentic and lively setting of the old harbor. Between art, history and gastronomy, this experience offers an elegant and typically Norman interlude in the heart of one of the most beautiful villages on the coast.
